October News Update
from the Ministry of
Parenting CIC

IN THIS ISSUE: WHATS NEW, PLUS
TRAINING UPDATE

Hi

As 2015 flies by we thought we would just send you all a quick Incredible Years News Update, we hope you find it informative.

Jeannie's exciting achievement this year is that she has become accredited in the Attentive Incredible Years programme. She is now planning her progress to become a mentor in the programme. If you are interested in the training in the Attentive programme PLEASE let us know as we are exploring training opportunities for 2016. info@theministryofparenting.com.

New beginnings

This is a new programme which looks amazing! We have already written a grant to see if we can pilot a group here in Colchester. Like the teachers programme the group leader meets with nursery and preschool teachers once a month for 6 months, following a manual with vignettes etc. The lead for this programme in the UK is Dr Sue Evans in Wales - she has a day planned 'Baby Programme Consultation & Introduction to the Well Baby Programme' on the 6th November in Wales see <http://www.incredibleyears.wales.co.uk/programmes.php.en>

In case you missed this ...

Now available is the "Autism spectrum or with language" programme. This 12-16 session program is offered to parents of young children (aged 2-5) For more information see <http://incredibleyears.com/programs/parent/autism-spectrum-language-delays/>

Home-coaching:

Have you undertaken the Incredible Years early years (toddler & preschool) basic or school aged training? Are you doing parts of the programme when you're doing your one to-one-sessions? Then the home-coaching training will be of interest to you.

The home-coaching is designed to be delivered in individual sessions, either at the parents' home, OR in a clinical setting. The difference between doing "bits of IY" in your one to one's and in following the programme is:

The programme has an additional guide pack called the 'Self-Administered Pack' which sets out the sessions in a 10 session guide. This is not only useful and time saving BUT can be used as part of a programme of evidence-based work for the courts and in private practice

The programme uses the group DVD's to support the parents learning and this keeps the sessions focused on the IY themes and helps avoid going 'off topic'.

- The programme helps the parents practice the strategies in the sessions
- You can become accredited in the home coaching programme
- You can use the pack session plan when doing a 'catch up' session for parents attending an Incredible Years group
- This model may also be used with parents who need some additional home-coaching with their children.
- The Home-Coaching programme training is taking place here, at The Ministry of Parenting on 1st December 2015

£160.00 with the Self-Administered Pack or £100 for just the training alone.

NOTE: To book on this training you must have completed a 3 day Incredible Years school-age or pre-school, early years training. To implement the home-coaching (one-to-one) programme you will also need access to the Incredible Years DVD's.
